THE STRIKE.

The Cypress Roundhouse Thoroughly Bombarded.

The Building Perforated by Numerous Bullets.

No One Injured and but Very Little Damage Done.

The Shooting Said to Have Been Done by Hoodlums.

The Great Strike in New York City Partially Settled.

The Round House Bombarded.

Early this morning the report of firearms dicharged in rapid volleys, was heard near Armstrong, some four hundred yards west of the Cypress round house. The guards on duty had scarcely heard the sound of the firing before bullets crashed into the round house and drove them to shelter. The firing lasted but a few minutes, but in that time about fifty bullets either struck or went singing past the round house. The sights on the guns were evidently rasied too high for the bullets, with one exception struck the building at too great an elevation to do any damage. One bullet, however, struck the steam gauge to a switch engine and damaged it slightly.

The firing seemed to come from the elevated ground some four hundred yards west of the round house, and evidently was done by three or four persons. It is judged from the calibre of the bullets found that Winchester rifles were used. The guards at the roundhouse did not, it is said, leave the building while the bombardment was going on, and of course the men who did the work escaped. The night was clear and the round-house was lighted, and presented a fair target from the hill, so the aim of the men was fairly accurate.

It is not generally believed that the shooting was done by the strikers, but it was probably the work of hoodlums who wanted to get up a little excitement. It occurred about 2 o'clock this morning.

The company ran trains as usual to-day and worked every switch engine stationed at the round house. The yards are now clear of the trains that accumulated during the strike and the company is now in good shape to handle a large amount of business. Three switch engines are kept busy at night making up trains which leave the city at an early hour the following morning. A few trains have been run after dark but the company does not intend to run night freights regularly for some time yet. A small guard is still stationed at the yards but the strikers have ceased to interfere with the work of the men now in the employ of the company. It is still deemed advisable, however, to keep policemen where they can be quickly called upon in case their services are demanded.

The Missouri Pacific pay car is expected to arrive the latter part of this week. The pay rolls will contain many new names, but it will also contain not a few old ones.

A Narrow Escape.

AN ATTEMPT MADE TO ASSASSINATE TWO MILITIAMEN.

Special Telegram to The Star

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—Another dastardly attempt was made upon the life of two sentinels in East St. Louis a little after 2 o'clock this morning. Two privates belonging to company D, Captain Hayes, named T. E. Lyons and F. N. Littler were on guard duty in the rear of the Vandalia freight house, on Third street. They walked up and down their beats on Third street and whenever they met would exchange a few words. Upon one of the occasions as Lyons and Littler were leaning against a box car talking dreamily of camp grub and malaria three shots were fired at them in quick succession from the east side of the street. The sentinels jumped forward and rapidly loading their rifles fired four shots at the retreating figures of two men. The echo of the first few shots had hardly died away when Lieutenant-Colonel M. A. Ewing ran out of the Vandalia freight office where he had been sleeping and calling for the corporal of the guard, threw out a skermishing line, hoping to intercept the would-be murderers. There is an electric light in the vicinity, however, and the cars standing near threw such dark shadows that the men easily made their escape. It was only after the excitement had subsided somewhat that the two sentinels discovered what a close call they had had. Private Lyons had his cap tipped back on his head and one of the bullets crushed through the rim of his cap, embedding itself in the box car against which he was leaning. The second shot went through Private Littler's cap, and, hitting the drawbar of the car, glanced off. The third penetrated the rear of the car and came within a foot or two of Private Little's head. The two militiamen men regard their escape as most fortunate as they were standing in the full glare of the electric light and the man could not have been more than twenty-five feet away when they fired. The shots were fired from the shadows of some new passenger cars belonging to the Natchez Red River & Tennessee line. Only two men were seen by the sentinels, although it is thought there were more. The ball that went through Lyon's cap came from a 45-calibre revolver, while the other two were 44-calibre.

Affairs in East St. Louis.

Special Telegram to The Star.

EAST. ST. LOUIS, April 20.—All was quiet at midnight. Company E, of the Fifth regiment, of Petersburg, left last evening on the Chicago & Alton train for home. Company F, of Greenville, of the Eighth, will probably leave at 8 a. m. Three new companies will arrive in the morning to take their places. The night patrol found nine soldiers at the skating rink and ordered them to their quarters. Major McDonald, of the Eighth, will be officer of the day, and Lieutenant Bostwick, of company A of the Fifth, officer of the guard to-morrow. Companies A and K, of the Fifth, are detailed for special duty. About twenty-five men are on the sick list, and one private from Carthage is seriously ill with brain fever.

The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy had a switch engine out last night and four trains passed over the bridge.

A considerable sum of money is said to have been received from Chicago by the labor assemblies here.

Failed to Get Their Men.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Superintendent Amsden, of the Lake Shore road when asked about the prospects of resuming business today said: "I don't think that we will try to do anything to-day. No use in trying to get a train past Forty-first street.

In the yards this morning there was no change in the state of affairs. The north branch of the stock yards "Y" is still obstructed with a train switched there yesterday. The first attempt of the company to enlist men ended last night in a failure.

At 8:30 o'clock an engine moved out of the round house into the yard. General Superintendent Wright, Yard Master Jones and General Freight Agent Blodgett were on the engine. The engine proceeded to where a train was standing at Forty-fourth street. The cars were surrounded by a crowd of strikers, who removed the draw-bar keys, completely disabling the cars. The engine stopped north of Forty-third street, was backed down to another train standing on a sidetrack. While an attempt was being made to reach the side-track, coupling pins and other obstructions put in front of the wheels. These were removed by the police. The engine was attached to the train. About this time the crowd at Forty-fourth street attempted to run the caboose which was attached to the train there in which a conductor and two brakemen were, onto a sidetrack. The brakeman and conductor rushed to the platform and warned crowd away. One of the men picked up a coupling pin and was about to throw it at the brakeman when the conductor drew a revolver. The crowd rushed at the brakeman, hustled him away and some one hit him on the head, knocking him senseless. At this time the crowd left the caboose and went up to Forty-fifth street, where two cars were standing on a side track, moved down and derailed them in front of the engine at Forty-third street. General Superintendent Wright gave up the attempt to move the train. The crowd gave a cheer, lifted the car on the track and moved it back to its former position. They repaired several switches which had been broken and the engine was moved back into the round house. Governor Oglesby arrived this morning and has been holding a consultation with Sheriff Planchett as to the situation on the Lake Shore road.

Governor Oglesby has been in consultation all day with Sheriff Hanchett and officials, and the officials of the Lake Shore road. The supervisor of the town of Lake said he was unable to afford the railroad any protection. It appears that the sheriff will be called upon to organize a posse as the next move before calling on the troops. Officials in consultation appear to regard serious trouble as imminent.

Governor Oglesby declared this afternoon that he would not interfere until the sheriff had exhausted all his power.

Settled Provisonally.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The railroad commissioners had a late session last night that did not end until this morning. Commissioner O'Donnell had made efforts to bring about a proper understanding between the different railway companies and their employes, and his endeavors were finally crowned with success. A long consultation was held, in which the executive council of the Empire Protective Association took part. The Third Avenue company again refused to consent to submit to arbitration the points of difference. The position of the other roads was made manifest even to the members of the executive committee of the Empire association. The latter admitted that the other roads were not backing up the Third Avenue company in the stand taken by the latter. As a result of this the commission agreed to countermand the order for a tie-up, and they issued an order directing the resumption of traffic on all Surface lines except the Third avenue at 4 o'clock this morning. This is, however, with the understanding that the tie-up may again be ordered whenever the committee is satisfied that other roads are helping the Third avenue in fighting them.

THE OFFICIALS GROWN DESPERATE.

The officials of the road refuse to bother with any more conferences before the railroad commissioners. They say they will fight to the bitter end now. The situation is hourly growing more critical. The men are becoming exasperated, but hope the railroad commissioners will be able to arbitrate. They say the struggle is for life or death now and they are ready for peace or war.

The Committee at Work

TRYING TO GET AT THE CAUSE OF SO MANY STRIKES—POWDERLY ON THE STAND.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The special committee of the house of representatives to inquire into the labor troubles in the southwest held a public session to-day. The committee consists of ex-Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, chairman; Messrs. Burnse, of Missouri; Crain, of Texas; Orthouse, of Ohio; Stewart, of Vermont; Parker, of New York, and Buchanan, of New Jersey. All members were present except Stewart. Among the prominent persons in attendance were, as representatives of the Knight of Labor, T. V. Powderly, J. W. Hayes, Wm. O. McDowell, members of the executive board; Frederick Thrner, grand secretary. As representatives of the railroad interests, Wager Swayne, counsel, and as representatives of the Woman's League of America, Mrs. Charlotte Smith and three other ladies. Powderly was the first witness sworn by the chairman.

The chairman, addressing him, said: "You understand that this committee is appointed by the house of representatives for the purpose, if possible, of getting down to the reasons for unrest and disturbance which now exists in the country, especially as to conflicts between labor and capital and employers and employed. Be pleased now to give to the committee your impressions as to this matter."

The examination of Powderly, which was extended, going over the history of the recent strike and troubles, was quite interesting, but presented nothing new or remarkable.

Anxious About the Elevated Roads.

Special Telegram to The Star.

NEW YORK, April 20, 3:30 a. m.—It is announced that a tie-up has been inaugurated on some of the elevated railroads and that the tie-up is caused by the action of some of the employes who are members of the Empire Protective association. The report cannot be confirmed at this time, but it comes from a source that is considered worthy of credence. This is an entirely unlooked for movement and probably it is not really a tie-up but simply some temporary hitch in the operation of one or more of the roads.

4 a. m.—It has been learned that the tie-up was ordered on the elevated roads at 3 o'clock but this was followed by another order countermanding the first and the roads will continue to run. The first order was a movement to aid the surface road strikers. The second order is supposed to have been issued on information being received that a compromise had been arranged that would allow all roads except the Third avenue to run to-day.

Locomotive Firemen at Work.

Special Telegram to The Star.

SEDALIA, April 20.—F. B. Sargent, grand chief agent, and Eugene Debbs, grand financial secretary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive firemen, arrived in Sedalia yesterday morning. In the afternoon Woods opera house was packed with members of the brotherhood and other organizations. Mayor Stevens presided. Both the gentlemen delivered excellent addresses on the labor question. They left for Parsons at night, where the grievance committee for the Gould system has been called to meet to take action on the grievances it is claimed exist between the company and the brotherhood. From Parsons they will go on a tour of inspection over the roads in the southwest.

All Lines But One Running.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The tie-up on the street car lines has been partially unloosened to-day and all the roads except the Third avenue are sending out the regular number of cars. The latter road ran a number of cars with new drivers and conductors, but inside the platforms their cars were filled with police. All along the route the new drivers and conductors and police were saluted with jeers and yells by the crowd, but no one opposed the progress of the cars. The railroad commissioners went into session at noon to consider the case of the Third avenue road.

Support from Citizens.

CHICAGO, April 20.—A mass meeting, said to be a gathering of citizens of the Town of Lake, was held last evening at the Root street rink to discuss Gould and the Southwestern strike. About 4,000 persons were present, among them leading people of the town. Resolutions were adopted pledging the citizens assembled to use every legitimate means to support employes of the Southwestern roads on a strike financially and morally in their heroic struggle against every unscrupulous enemy.

Powderly Ready to Testify.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Grand Master Powderly and Messrs. Hayes and Turner, Knights of Labor, arrived here this morning. Powderly repaired at once to the room of the appropriation committee where he had a short chat with Mr. Randall. The select committee charged with the investigation of the western strikes it is hoped will commence its examination of representative Knights of Labor this afternoon.

More Switchmen Will Strike.

CHICAGO, April 20.—A morning paper says: Several switchmen in the service of the Rock Island road were in conference with a committee of Lake Shore switchmen last night. They say if the Lake Shore company continues to support non-union men, and its bitter refusal to resign it is almost certain, that within the next two days the switchmen on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific will strike.

A School Strike Won.

Special Telegram to The Star.

SALEM, Ill., April 20.—The school children here struck for shorter hours by abolishing recesses. The board considered the matter and have cut off the recesses and the children are dismissed one hour sooner.

More Militia Preparing.

Special Telegram to The Star.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., April 20.—Captain H. M. Abell, of the Rodman Rifles, has received official instructions to have his company in readiness for active service. The Rifles are holding a drill at the armory, expecting momentary notice to leave for East St. Louis. The company is well officered and disciplined and will turn out nearly a full roster if called for duty.

Another Strike Expected.

TOLEDO, O., April 20.—The switchmen of the Lake Shore road here are quiet. There is no local cause for trouble and if a strike occurs at this point it will be under orders from Chicago. About one hundred switchmen are in the Lake Shore employ. They frankly avow their determination to go out in a body the moment orders are received which may come any instant.

Rewarding a Man Who Was Beaten.

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—A special from Little Rock to the Post-Dispatch states that Deputy Sheriff Williams was assaulted and badly beaten by strikers while he was guarding the Iron Mountain railroad property has received a check for $500 from Jay Gould.

All Bad Marksmen.

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—Two sentinels patrolling the railroad yards in East St. Louis were fired upon before daylight this morning by some persons unknown. Neither of them was hit. They returned the fire, but proved as bad marksmen as their assailants, who escaped.

RESULT OF SPECULATION.

The Agent of a Kansas City Firm Skips With the Firm's Money.

NEW YORK, April 20.—D. R. Smart, a member of the produce exchange, has been absent from his office and post in the exchange since Friday last, and his employer said yesterday that Smart was a defaulter and possibly a forger. Smart came here from Kansas City and bought a ticket of membership to the produce exchange. He represented the big provision packing firm of Geo. Fowler & Son, of Kansas City and Liverpool. Smart had been in their employ for five years. He was shipping agent in this city. It was learned yesterday that Smart had been speculating heavily in wheat. He has been an out and out bear and his winnings have been estimated in the neighborhood of $100,000. It is not exactly clear why he took the firm's money unless the recent sharp advance in wheat wiped out his big winnings. Others believe he took the winnings along with the firm's money. He sailed for Europe Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Fowler, of Kansas City, arrived here Saturday night and said yesterday: "I have only had an opportunity to make a hasty examination of Smart's books. I am certain that Smart has gone and that about $35,000 of the firm's money went with him. Perhaps he took more."

Smart's Career in Kansas City.

D. R. Smart, the shipping agent of the firm of Fowler Bros., New York, who on Saturday absconded, being a defaulter to the amount of $35,000, was originally foreman of the lard refinery at the Kansas City packing house of the firm. His education was limited, but he understood that particular branch of the business and was possessed of more than an average amount of shrewdness, which Mr. George Fowler recognizing, he sent him as his agent to Texas, with headquarters at Houston. He there did a heavy business in packing house products, but drafts were made by the house direct upon his customers, so that he had no opportunity to embezzle while he held that position.

He was sent to New York about May last to superintend the shipment of goods to Europe, and in that capacity he has it appears somehow appropriated the money of the firm, or of other parties, probably the latter, for Mr. George A. Fowler who went to New York upon the discovery of Smart's flight, is reported as saying that he could only have obtained the amount by forgery. He not only was never confidential clerk of Fowler Bros., at their Kansas City house, but he never held any position whatever in their office either here or elsewhere until he reached New York in May.

MARKETS ELSEWHERE.

A Dull Time in Everything—Wheat Closes a Little Higher and Provisions Lower—Corn Neglected.

Norton & Worthington furnish the following:

May wheat closed in Chicago at 1 p. m. ⅛c higher than yesterday. The market was very dull and the range of prices limited. There seemed to be no features to trade, and the situation remained unchanged.

Corn was dull, weak, and fractionally lower.

Provisions seemed especially weak, May pork closing at $9.10.

There was nothing in any market which appears worthy of notice.

Official receipts of hogs yesterday were 16,188; shipments, 4,518; left over, 4,000; estimated receipts to-day, 8,000; for to-morrow, 10,000 to 15,000.

The hog market was strong and about all were sold. Packers bought about 4,500 and shippers some 5,500. Prices ranged from 10 to 15c higher.

Receipts of grain were 31 cars of wheat, 132 of corn, 139 of oats, 2 of rye and 29 of barley.

Estimated receipts for to-morrow are 19 cars of wheat, 64 of corn, 118 of oats.

Cables were steady and unchanged.

There was at noon a report that a steam barge passed through the straits this morning, coming toward Chicago.

Sales for export up to 1 p. m. were 2 loads of wheat and 5 loads of corn.

AT DEATH'S DOOR.

Ex-President Arthur Said to be Ill Beyond Human Aid.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The World in a long article to-day says: "Ex-President Arthur is a very sick man. It may not be beyond simple truth to say that his case is hopeless. It certainly is not to say that many of his most intimate friends never expect to see him out of his house alive again." This is startling news, but cannot be gainsaid. One of Arthur's most intimate friends said last night: "General Arthur is in a very critical condition. I do not expect ever to see him alive again, nor do his other personal friends. It has been at the request of the family that the truth has been withheld."

The Cut in Cable Rates.

Special Telegram to The Star.

NEW YORK, April 20.—It is stated on good authority that the cut in cable rates was made possible only by the Western Union agreeing to give up its land tolls. Before the cut was made the cable toll of 40 cents a word was made only to New York and New England points. The Western Union always added a special toll from these points to inland points. For instance, 2 cents a word from New York to Philadelphia and 5 cents a word from New York to Chicago. Now the Western Union, by giving up its land tolls, will share in cable business only to the extent of its interest in the cable pool, which is 22½ per cent of the total receipts. This cut is a direct blow at the Baltimore & Ohio as well as at the Bennett-Mackay cable. The latter cannot meet the cut to western points unless the Baltimore & Ohio stands in with it on the land tolls. The Mackay-Bennett Cable company has not met the cut because it is waiting for the Baltimore & Ohio's answer. The reason the cable companies have united to try to wipe out the Commercial company is, first, it would not join the pool; second, last year outside of the pool it took over $1,000,000 of cable business, and third, it has avowed its intention of staying out of the pool.

Taught a Useful Lesson.

Special Telegram to The Star.

LAMAR, Mo., April 20.—Last night while Frank Barrett was on his way home he was met by two other young men named James England and Robert Edwards who at once began abusing Barrett over an alleged grudge. Eventually England hit Barrett on the head with a rock and proceeded to give him a terrible whipping, while Edwards stood by to see it well done. The tide turned, however, for in tha melee Barrett drew a pocket knife and very nearly let England's life's blood out. Barrett was arrested this morning, but after the facts in the case was learned he was released and told to go, and when he was wanted he would be sent for. England's recovery is doubtful.

Disappointed Office Seekers.

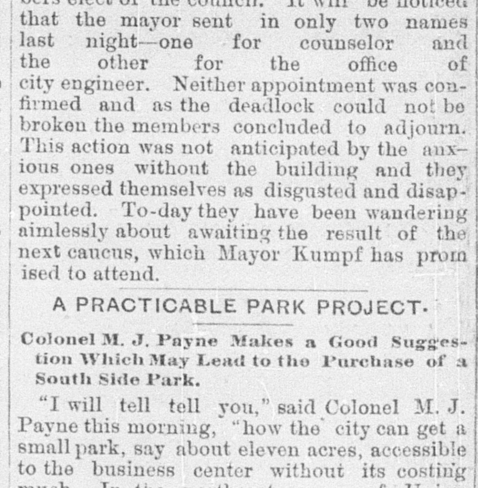
The action of the council in premeditately entering into a dead-lock last night, because of a fancied grievance against Mayor Kumpf, was a source of great disappointment to the hundreds of office seekers who flocked to the city hall. It is generally understood that all of the important appointments were to have been made and confirmed last night, but the council became aggressive and determined to reject all nominations sent in by the mayor.

Those who pretend to be well informed in regard to appointments, claim that there will be only two changes. That is all the men now holding offices that will be reappointed with the exception of city engineer and city counselor. This, it is said, was the plan agreed upon at a recent caucus of the members elect of the council. It will be noticed that the mayor sent in only two names last night—one for counselor and the other for the office of city engineer. Neither appointment was confirmed and as the deadlock could not be broken the members concluded to adjourn. This action was not anticipated by the anxious ones without the building and they expressed themselves as disgusted and disappointed. To-day they have been wandering aimlessly about awaiting the result of the next caucus, which Mayor Kumpf has promised to attend.

A PRACTICABLE PARK PROJECT.

Colonel M. J. Payne Makes a Good Suggestion Which May Lead to the Purchase of a South Side Park.

"I will tell tell you," said Colonel M. J. Payne this morning, "how the city can get a small park, say about eleven acres, accessible to the business center without its costing much. In the northeast corner of Union cemetery Kansas City has five acres of land which was used for a Potter's field. Only about one-fourth of tract is filled with graves, the remainder being a waste and unsuitable for burial purposes. In the northwest corner of the Union cemetery Westport has three acres of land set aside for the same purpose, in which there are about twelve graves. Between these two tracts there is another of about three acres which is mainly unsuited for burial purposes because of its irregular topography. This tract which lies between and unites the other two is not in use. This outline of Union cemetery with the three tracts I have described to you will make the situation clearer:



"The town of Westport will dispose of its tract for a very small sum as from the terms of purchase it is not marketable and it is no longer of any use for burial purposes. The three acres of the cemetery company, that is the middle tract, can be bought for a reasonable sum for park purposes or it may be leased to the city for fifty years. The dozen graves in the Westport potter's field can remain where they are without any inconvenience or may be removed without much expense. I know of no ground better adapted to park purposes than these eleven acres. There are wooded hills, green valleys groves of trees, bluffs and splendid scenery. It is naturally picturesque and its location unsurpassed."

In speaking of the Union cemetery, Colonel Payne remarked that he is constantly being asked when the cemetery company will give the right of way to the Grand boulevard. He says the company is ready to concede the right of way whenever the boulevard is ready to make the change. The boulevard, which now crosses the corner of the Westport potter's field, will when straightened as proposed pass through the center of the three tracts described by Colonel Payne.

MR. L. T. MOORE TALKS.

The Originator of the Seventh, Walnut and Grand Avenue Hotel Project Announces its Complete Success.

"There is no longer the slightest doubt concerning the erection of the new hotel on Grand avenue and Walnut street at Seventh," said Mr. L. T. Moore, of Bullene, Moores, Emery & Co., this morning. "The builders were here all day yesterday, and after making a tour of all the available hotel sites in the city, on both the west and east sides, expressed themselves delighted with the original location. They told me, after they had visited all the other sites suggested, that nothing could tempt them to change their first decision. They enlarged on the fact that their site between Grand avenue and Walnut street on Seventh, was the key to all possible depots; that it was between two cable lines and within three blocks of every street car line in the city. They will return to-morrow, close the contract and begin work at once. On a second consideration they have decided to make the hotel a more costly affair than was provided for in the original plans. One of the gentlemen among the builders who met in my office yesterday represents $15,000,000 alone. He told me that he would see that there was money enough, if it took a million."

A TALK WITH MANAGER HOLMES.

The Active Member of the Grand Avenue Cable Company Tells What is Being Done.

"Our engineers, Knight and Bontecou, have just completed plans for a hundred foot steel bridge which will span the Belt line tracks at Grand avenue and Twenty-first street," said General Manager Walton Holmes of the Grand Avenue Cable company.

"How about that lumber yard which blocks Grand avenue at Twentieth street?" was asked.

"It will be out of the way by the middle of next month, and as this is the last obstruction the street will be completely opened. We think Knight and Bontecon have given us the best plans for a steel bridge ever drawn in the west."

"What progress is being made on Fifteenth street?"

"Work on Fifteenth street has been pushed rapidly. The survey for the cable tracks has been completed to the eastern city limits and the next step after the stakes have been placed will be the excavating for the road bed."

"Do you build to the city limits on Fifteenth street?"

"Yes, we have contracted for material to build the entire eastern branch at once. We will not stop short of the limit of our franchise and the engineering work is already complete to this point."

THREE ACCIDENTS.

Two Men Seriously Injured While at Work—A Boy Run Over by a Street Car.

A boy about 8 years of age, whose name or place of residence could not be learned, was badly injured at Ninth and Walnut streets, about 10 o'clock this morning, by being run over by car No. 14 of the Westport line. The boy was on Walnut close to the street car track and within a few feet of the cable line on Ninth street. Street car No 14 going north and a team going in the opposite direction came up and the boy being caught between them attempted to escape, but in so doing was knocked down in front of the street car and both wheels passed over his legs badly mashing them. The car was crowded with passengers. The little fellow was taken care of by somebody present.

Dominick Duffy was badly injured at the Mid-Continent boiler factory on Santa Fe street, in West Kansas, this forenoon, by a sheet of boiler iron weighing about 1,000 pounds falling on him. The flesh was all torn from the thumb on his right hand and one of the toes on his right foot was almost cut off. He was also otherwise injured. He is a single man and a stranger in the city, having been employed at the boiler factory since only 9 o'clock this morning. He was taken to the city hospital.

About 10:30 a man named Johnson, one of the men employed on the steamer Wyoming, got his right knee badly hurt in some manner while unloading freight on the boat at the foot of Santa Fe street. He was attended to by Dr. Shipley.

SUICIDED.

Henry Born Takes His Own Life With Prussic Acid.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, Henry Born, who resides over Liggitt's grocery store, on the northeast corner of Seventeenth and Oak, went to a drug store and stated that his dog had gone mad and he watned some prussic acid with which to kill it. On these representations he was sold the poison by the druggist, who did not suspect anything was wrong. He went to his home immediately and took the poison. He died in a few minutes afterward. Born was 54 years of age, and leaves a wife but no children. He was lately employed at Krauss's, Fourth and Main. His habits were not very good, it is said, and he has been drinking for some time.

The report that Born suicided with prussic acid as at first announced, proved to be erroneous. He went to the drug store and stated that he had a pet dog which had bitten a neighbor and that the animal would have to be killed. He then stated that a physician had told him to get cyanide of potassium. There was nothing in the man's appearance that he intended to kill himself, so the poison was sold to him. He signed his name in the register and then quietly left the store. It is believed he swallowed the contents of the bottle just as he entered the room, and almost immediately fell upon the floor. His death occurred as suddenly as if he had sent a bullet through his heart.

Born was a rather fine-looking man, and about 45 years old. He had been out of employment for some time past, and that, coupled with excessive spreeing and domestic trouble, doubtless led him to commit suicide.

BETRAYED.

A Warning to Young Girls—She Formed the Acquaintance of a Stranger.

A young girl named Rose Pearl left her home in Small City, Kas., a few days ago to visit relatives in another city. While on the train coming to Kansas City she formed the acquaintance of a gentleman with whom she became completely infatuated and she promised to become his wife before the arrival of the train at the union depot. They went and procured a marriage license and last evening were married by Justice Allen. The man gave his name as William Smith. Rose this morning woke up to find she had been betrayed and deserted, She states that she remembers nothing since shortly after the performance of the marriage ceremony. This morning she found herself at the Topeka house. She will be sent to her home by the Humane society.

Police Court News.

The only thing to vary the monotony of the police court this morning was a case, in which an almond-eyed Celestial of the Flowery Kingdom, had a painter named Charles Lee arrested for assaulting him with a rock. Lee denied the allegation, but the court fined him $5 and costs. This was City Attorney Williams's first morning as prosecutor and it was owing to this fact that a large number of the prisoners plead not guilty; but Williams surprised them with the vim he showed in prosecuting and not a single one escaped, all being found guilty. Fred Smith thought it was essential to his personal safety that he should have a revolver with which to protect himself, but he paid $50.50 this morning for the privilege. Of the common offenders there were, drunks, thirteen; disturbers of the peace, eight, who were fined the usual amount. Minnie Woods headed a gang of four frequenters of saloons, who were fined $6 each.

Met a Friend.

A German whose knowledge of the English language is very limited, arrived in this city early this morning, and at once started out in search of employment. He walked towards the stock yards and soon succeeded in meeting some one who showed a disposition to be friendly. When the German returned to the depot he informed Depotmaster Rodgers that he had surrendered $22.50 to the stranger. He had great difficulty in making himself understood and the depot master could not get his name. The German realized that the money was gone and after a mild indulgence in profanity, settled down to think over the neat manner in which he had been victimized by a crook.

Burglars at Work.

Burglars seem to have decided upon Seventeenth street as their field of action for last night, there being three burglaries within three blocks of one another, one at Reilly's saloon, another at McGraw's saloon, and still another at a clothing store. The entrance in all cases was effected by prying open the front door. Nothing of any value was taken from either place. Detectives Hunt and Hayes succeeded in catching the supposed perpetrators this morning. They were brought to the Central station and locked up, but none of the stolen property was found on their persons. They gave their names as James Huffron and John Allen.

THE ST. LOUIS NEW BRIDGE.

OBSTRUCTIONS TO THE PASSAGE OF THE EXCHANGE BILL.

A Rule of the Senate Committee With Regard to New Bridges—District Attorney Bliss May Resign by Request—The President Making a Study of the Land Laws.

Special Telegram to The Star.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Another obstruction has turned up in the way of the new bridge bill of the Merchants' exchange which will occasion some delay in its passage. It seems it was taken up on Friday last by Senators McMillan and Vest, together with other bridge bills which had been referred to them as a sub-committee by the full commerce committee, but when it was found the bill proposed to grant a charter to private individuals instead of an incorporated company, as proposed in the original bill, consideration was dropped for the present on account of a rule adopted some time ago by the committee not to pass any bridge bills in that form. Senator Vest advised Senator Cockrell of the action in sub-committee and requested him to communicate with President Cobb of the exchange. This he did at once by telegraph and later by lettor, and yesterday received an extended telegram inquiring if it would not be possible to get the committee to waive objection on the ground above stated. Senator Cockrell immediately replied that it could not be done, and Senator Vest, speaking to the correspondent of THE STAR about the matter yesterday afternoon, stated that the rules of the committee was inflexible and must be complied with. It was adopted some time ago after experience had shown in one case at least that there was danger that charters so granted would be sought solely for speculative purposes and sold to other parties. It is a rule of the committee and not of the senate, but the house committee seem to have acted upon the same idea in the case of a bill for the Kansas City bridge introduced by Congressman Warner, which originally gave the charter to Bullene and others, but as reported by the committee, it grants it to the Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific railroad. Senator Vest states that he has received a protest against the merchants' exchange bridge from Knapp, Stout & Co., the great lumber company of North St. Louis, but as the details of the bill have not yet been taken under consideration by the committee the protest still waits attention.

Colonel Tom Crews left for home last night after interviewing the attorney-general and Colonel Lamont, the president's private secretary, to close up his workt He is reported as having told some of his friends that during his interview with General Garland he was informed that District Attorney Bliss had recently offered to resign whenever notified. That is probably a mistake, however, and it is not likely Colonel Crews has said what some of his friends think, as it is quite certain that the attorney-general would not hesitate to send Mr. Bliss the requisite notice if no more than that was necessary to make a vacancy. Nevertheless, there is no doubt some foundatton for all this talk about Bliss offering to resign, and the real facts will in course of time be brought out. Meanwhile it is a grave misstatement of the truth to represent that the question of a change in this office is merely one of selecting a Democratic incumbent and not in any manner of getting Bliss out. All the trustworthy information obtainable confirms the declaration heretofore made that there would be no delay in the selection of the Democrat for the place if the [illegible] were open for a Democrat to take.

There i[illegible] rumor that the president has been makin[illegible] of those careful and laborious studies which he is given of the public land ques[illegible]on and that he has become so thoroughly convinced of the vastness of the land frauds, of the misuse of the present land laws for land grabbing by syndicates and corporations, and of the necessity of a thorough reform of both the land laws and the land administration that he will presently send a special message to congress urging its immediate action in the way of reform and repeal of bad laws to help him to saving the still remaining public lands for homesteads for the people.

A Protest Entered.

Special Telegram to The Star.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Senator Vest presented a remonstrance against the passage of the bill now pending allowing a rebate on ingredients used in the manufacture of plug tobacco for export signed by Liggett & Myers Tobacco company, Christian Peper Dousman Tobacco company, J. T. Drummond, of St. Louis.

Warrants Issued for Prize Fighters.

Special Telegram to The Star.

ST. LOUIS, April 20.—Bench warrants were issued by Judge Van Wagoner yesterday afternoon upon request of the grand jury for Arthur Flint and Dan Daly for prize fighting, and Oliver Wiseman, Tom Kelly, Bob Nichols, Chas. Woods, Wm. Bradburn, James Casey and Jack Sommerville for aiding and abetting a prize fight. As soon as the jury convened the case was taken up and a number of witnesses were summoned, among others the young men who held the stakes, but who were not present at the fight. The gloves worn by Daly were exhibited, and after hearing several other witnesses the jury requested the court to issue the warrants. Wiseman backed Flint and Tom Kelly and Bob Nichols backed Daly. Wm. Bradburn, a Chicago pugilist and Gem Kelly acted as seconds for Daly, and Charles Woods, a Montana slugger, and James Casey were Flint's seconds. Jack Sommerville was tendered the office of referee, but declined in favor of George Gore. The warrants were placed in the sheriff's hands at 6 o'clock, but up to a late hour last night no arrests had been made. By indicting the parties involved the state virtually takes the cases out of the hand of Judge Noonan. The latter has already passed on a similar case, holding that the law construed prize fighting as meaning a fight for money with bare hands. The men will be ably defended, and it is believed all will furnish bond. Bradburn is at present in Chicago and will, in all probability, be brought back.

A Bank Suspends.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., April 20.—The City National bank of Williamsport closed its doors this morning. The cause of the bank's trouble is said to be defalcations of about $20,000, together with a number of heavy losses. The stockholders are perfectly responsible persons, and say the depositors shall be paid in full. The president of the bank is B. O. Dotto and the cashier B. C. Caldwell.

Sentences Commuted.

FORT SMITH, Ark., April 20.—The death sentences of five of the eight Indian Territory murderers, to have been hung here Friday, have been commuted to imprisonment for life in the Detroit house of correction.

Cora Lee Wants Out of Jail.

Special Telegram to The Star.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 20.—Cora Lee, through her attorney, Judge James Baker, applied to Judge Wallace for a writ of habeas corpus to secure her release, or at least be admitted to bail. The writ was ordered and will be argued at Bolivar, Thursday, at which place Cora is confined in jail. Judge Baker was accompanied by Mrs. Molloy, who will probably remain with Cora who is reported suffering from an attack of typhoid fever. George E. Graham, in the Springfield jail, was also sick enough yesterday to require the attendance of a physician.

FOURTEEN DROWNED.

Wholesale Death and Desolation Caused by a Bursting Dam.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 20.—A terrible accident has occurred at East Lee, resulting in a large loss of life and much damage to property. At 6 this morning the village of East Lee was inundated and devastated by the breaking away of the dam at Mud Pond reservoir, Mountain lake, two and a half miles from the village. The pond covered many acres of swamp, which was increased from its regular limited size by extensive dams built by a club of manufacturers as a store place for water. The flood came pouring down the streets, the water being from four to six feet deep, bringing with it trees, portions of houses, barns, fences, wagons, and every form of movable property. People fled to the slopes of the valley along which the torrent was pouring and toppled about like chips on a river. The flood passed East Lee and went on down the road, destroying gardens, lawns, fences and moving smaller buildings. It had not the power, however, to wreck utterly the larges houses, though the damage done will amount to many thousand dollars. As soon as possible the people went up the line of the flood. Fortunately the track of the flood was in a sparsely inhabited country but what destruction there was for it to do in wrecking three or four houses along its way was thoroughly accomplished. Much stock besides property was lost.

The explorers have already found the bodies of six persons, and are searching for others,

The scene is one of terrible desolatton, and the town of Lee is wild with excitement.

Later news just received from East Lee says nine bodies have been found and that it is expected that several will be discovered. The bodies recovered and identified thus far are as follows:

MR. WHITE, wife and two young daughters.

MR. KING and wife and Mrs. King's son and wife.

Eleven bodies so far have been found. Three persons who were living in the track of the flood are missing.

White's carriage shops were destroyed.

Harrison Garfield's paper mill was undermined.

Decker's paper mills were also damaged.

John McLaughlin's machine shops were totally wrecked.

Melting Snow Causes the Calamity.

Special Telegram to The Star.

BOSTON, April 20.—A special dispatch received shortly before noon from Pittsfield states that the great dam at Lee, ten miles below there, which furnished power for some dozen huge mills, gave way without warning at an early hour and almost swept the town out of existence. The noise of the explosion sounded like an earthquake and the houses were swept away while their inmates were still in bed. The dam was at the head of Mud pond, a sheet of water over a mile in length. Messengers upon swift horses were immediately dispatched ahead of the flood to arouse the village in the path of the coming torrents. Six lives are reported lost so far, but as the water covers everything it is impossible to get to the immediate location for the current is pouring through the town at the rate of twenty miles an hour. Melting snow upon the mountains caused the freshet which did the damage. Lee is a town of 5,000 inhabitants in Western Massachusetts, on the Fitchburg railroad. Relief is being sent to the scene.

Full Warning to Beer Drinkers.

For some years a decided inclination has been apparent over the country to give up the use of whisky and other strong alcohols, using as a substitute beer and other compounds. This is evidently founded on the idea that beer is not harmful, and contains a large amount of nutriment; also, that bitters may have some medicinal quality which will neutralize the alcohol which it conceals, etc. These theories are without confirmation in the observation of physicians. The use of beer is found to produce a species of degeneration of all the organs; profound and deceptive fatty deposits, diminished circulation, condition of digestion and perversion of functional activities, local inflammations of both the liver and the kidneys, are continually present. Intellectually a stupor amounting almost to paralysis arrests the reason changing the higher faculties into a mere animalism, sensual, selfish, sluggish, varied only with paroxysms of anger that are senseless and brutal. In appearance the beer drinker may be the picture of health, but in reality he is most incapable of resisting disease. A slight injury, a severe cold, or shock to the body or mind will commonly provoke acute disease, ending fatally.

Compared with inebriates who use different kinds of alcohol, he is more incurable and more generally diseased. The constant use of beer every day gives the system no recuperation, but steadily lowers the vital forces. It is our observation that beer drinking in this country produces the very lowest kind of inebriety, closely allied to criminal insanity. The most dangerous class of ruffians in our cities are beer drinkers.

A Typical Californian.

Joseph Redding has once again returned from New York. He has been east several times, but he has invariably left New York entirely behind him and perhaps a little California gold coin. He finds it hard to get away with anything from New York. He has been looking after an Indian—a poor Indian—whose case is at present giving the supreme court as much worry as his fellow-Indians are giving the army. You may depend upon it, California's interests has not suffered at Joe's hands. In the Hoffman house bar they have had a huge article on exhibition labled "California pumpkin—1,200." Joe was looking at this.

"It's a shame," said Joe to Stokes—"it's a confounded shame."

"What's a shame?"

"Imposing on the public of New York with that thing."

"What do you mean?"

"That isn't a California pumpkin. It's a plain, everyday, sell-'em-in-the-market California apricot."

"Well, you see," said Stokes, "the New York people here aren't accustomed to your California produce. They've got nerves, and to tell them the truth would shock them. So this week I labeled it a pumpkin. I'll lead 'em by degrees. Next week I'll say it's a California pear; and the third week I'll come out with the truth and tell them it's a plain, ordinary California peanut."

Shot His Sweetheart and Himself.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Francis M. Wilson, a lawyer, 21 years old, this morning went to the house at 144 West Sixteenth street to see a young woman named Emma Adams with whom he had been intimate and who had deserted him. After a quarrel he drew a revolver and shot her, inflicting a dangerous wound. He then shot himself in the right temple. His wound is thought to be fatal.

Probabilities.

For this section: Fair weather, followed by light local rains, slight changes in temperature; winds generally shifting to easterly.

THE KANSAS CITY STAR'S daily circulation for the week ending Saturday, April 17, 1886, was as follows:

Monday, April 12	18,350
Tuesday, April 13	18,180
Wednesday April 14	20,896
Thursday, April 15	18,100

Total for the week	111,946
Daily average for the week	18,658

TURKEY and Greece are indulging in their semi-annual diversion of making faces at each other. Both talk war with vehemence but the probability is that each is waiting anxiously for the spanking with which the powers always stop their foolishness. Neither country can afford a war which would only result in a further division of their already limited domains among the neighboring governments.

THE council should not appropriate the money asked for by the police commissioners until the appropriation for the sanitary department is made. In a pinch each individual citizen can protect himself from the assaults of foot pads but the attacks of cholera cannot be repelled by individual action. Let the sanitary department be placed in a first class footing and if there be a surplus then let the police be taken care of.

THE well-known Bank of Kansas City, one of the most substantial financial institutions of the west, has incorporated under the national banking act and will henceforth be known as the National Bank of Kansas City. There will be no change whatever in the management, and the new national bank having increased its paid-up capital to $1,000,000 will more than ever recommend itself to the business men of this section.

LOUISVILLE may properly claim to be the home of the moss-back and the Gehenna of the civil-service reformer. Saturday night 5,000 able-bodied Bourbons howled themselves hoarse applauding a series of resolutions denouncing the president for reappointing Mrs. VIRGINIA THOMPSON postmistress at Louisville. No one claimed that she had not ably administered the affairs of the office for the past eight years; the only objection to her was that she had served under two Republican administrations. Poor old Kentucky.

THE country is promised a considerable period of cheap rates for cable messages. The United Cable companies have long been threatening war on the Mackay-Bennett company, and yesterday announced a cut of 50 per cent on all business. The Mackay-Bennett people will retaliate, and before long it is possible that cable rates will be no higher than for equal distances on land. These companies threaten each other with financial ruin, but there need be no fear of such an outcome. Each is fabulously rich, and both can make an exorbitant profit even at the reduced rates.

SOME of the real estate dealers, gamblers and holders of options charge that the course of THE STAR in exposing their schemes is damaging to Kansas City's prosperity. This we deny. We believe that this city can stand the truth. This city has a great future but its interests are too great to have them trifled with by a crowd of fellows who are anxious to make fresh fortunes every twenty-four hours by gulling the innocent and taking in the unwary. Such methods will do for the confidence man, the bucket shop operator and the boomers of such towns as Walnut and Kanopolis, but the interests of Kansas City demand that its real estate shall be owned by those who can pay for and improve it. Wind is all right enough in its way but is not needed to boom Kansas City.

THE nomination for city engineer made by Mayor KUMPF last night was an indication that the new administration is not imbued with that progressive spirit which many of its friends had hoped. The recollection of the condition of the engineer's department during Mr. DONNELLY'S incumbency is not calculated to inspire a confidence that he is now equal to the charge of this most important office. If the mayor and council cannot make an appointment which would certainly insure a more efficient management of this office than there has been during the incumbency of Engineer WHITNEY it will be better to continue him in office than return to an engineer whose inefficiency was demonstrated years ago. Unless there is to be an improvement there should be no change. The council acted wisely in rejeting the nomination of Mr. DONNELLY.

THE Washington Star, whose information is usually pretty reliable, is authority for the statement that President CLEVELAND has been reading the riot act to the Hon. SAMUEL J. RANDALL. The Star says: "On the occasion of one of Mr. RANDALL'S calls at the White house a day or two ago, it is asserted Mr. CLEVELAND talked with him on the tariff, expressing the opinion that a revision and reduction of the tariff should be had this session and suggesting that the Democrats were pledged to such action and would be expected to fulfill their pledge; he expressed the opinion, it is stated, that the present bill seemed to be a safe one to pass. The president is said to have talked with other Democratic protectionists and to have posted himself in the theories in support of the ways and means committee. This has had a very serious effect upon the little protectionist band in the party, and it is believed by their opponents that their numbers will melt away before the mild influence of the executive opinion. Mr. RANDALL'S attitude cannot thus be changed, but it is hoped by the tariff reformers that his followers will shrink away." Undoubtedly the president's action in siding with the tariff reformers will have a most pronounced effect on the Democratic protectionists. Certainly his course cannot cause surprise in any quarter for it is thoroughly consistent with his utterances made before his election. Then, in the heat of the campaign, he visited the protectionist stronghold of Newark and made a tariff speech to an audience made up largely of "protected" employes of the great shops of that city. The Star estimates the number of Democratic protectionists at not more than twenty-two and thinks that fully half this number will go over to the reformers upon learning of the president's desires in the matter. If this estimate be correct the Morrison bill will surely pass.

ANOTHER experiment in long distance telephoning was tried in Chicago on Sunday, and was more successful than such experiments have heretofore been. The lines used extend from Chicago to Cleveland, via Indianapolis, a distance of 800 miles, and between Chicago and New York, 1,020 miles. The test was made with a new telephone—the Turnbull—and was far more successful than any experiments hitherto attempted with the Bell or other instruments. The Turnbull telephone differs somewhat in construction from those now in use.

The improvements of the new instrument over the Bell telephone are the invention of W. C. TURNBULL, of Baltimore, who has been at work on the same for fifteen years and who secured his patent therefor Feb. 25, of the present year. The general outward appearance of the telephone is similar to the Bell instrument with the exception that the call bell is placed below the diaphragm. The improvement is contained in the transmitter, which is a piece of veneered cherry or birch wood, about 4x5 inches in size. On the inside of the transmitter are placed two carbon rods on which are hinged six or more carbon pencils, thus producing what is termed a "carbon microphone." In speaking against the transmitter the vibrations are taken up by the carbons and then transmitted. Conversation was carried on with different people in Cleveland for more than half an hour, and the sounds transmitted by the telephone are said to have been as distinct as though the parties conversing were only a few blocks apart, but the replies from New York were somewhat confused because of the greater distance traversed. While the experiment was more for gratifying curiosity than anything else, it gives a sort of indistinct idea of what may be expected of the telephone when it shall have been fully developed.

DOWN EAST NOTIONS.

Boston Ministers Invite a "Knight" and Then Insult Him.

BOSTON, Mass., April 15.—The Universalist ministers, after having invited Mr. George E. McNeill, secretary of the Knights of Labor, to address them at their meeting to-day, grossly insulted him and the order to which he belongs. After the usual preliminaries Mr. McNeill arose and presented the principles and methods of his organization, and explained various points in reply to questions from several of the clergymen present. When the strike in the southwest was brought up the Rev. Dr. Sawyer, with passion showing plainly on his face, arose and said that he thought the situation an outrage, for which the order was responsible, and that the men who attempted to destroy engines and property should be shot down like other highwaymen.

In answer to this Mr. McNeill, who is always able to control his temper, although his deepset, black eyes flashed, spoke of the crude condition of things in the order, which is so rapidly enrolling thousands of men, and pointed to the misunderstanding between Messrs. Gould and Powderly, and said: "Now arbitration has been refused and we can't go back. If they commit violence let the law take its course, and we will not defend them. When it has been finally proved that a man has violated the law he will be expelled. If it comes to that, however, if the laws defend injustice and oppression, I am prepared to meet the issue with bloodshed if necessary. If we are right we ought to succeed, and we shall. If we are not we shall not succeed, and ought not to."

"You may be sure of that!" thundered Dr. Sawyer.

The chairman pounded and called for order, but a general war of words followed in spite of all his efforts.

When quiet had been partially restored Mr. McNeil urged that the Knights should not be condemned because of the acts of some of its members and leaders any more than the Union army should be condemned for the faults of its soldiers or the mistakes of its generals.

Mr. McNeill's good temper carried the day, and when he had finished a vote of thanks—in which Dr. Sawyer's voice was not heard—was tendered him.

The Worthless Booms.

To the Editor of The Star

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 19.—The most agreeable article I have read in THE STAR for many a long day, was your editorial opinion of the real estate frauds of our city, as published in the issue of Friday last. I had always presumed that the press of the city was most liberally rewarded for its editorial allegiance to their cause. Said article has been most favorably endorsed and commented upon by all classes of our careful experienced, conservative citizens who hold sacred the future of our city's welfare. This "boom" business has undoubtedly passed the period of its substancial influences, and has degenerated into a species of gambling profiting only the gamester and capitalist, at the expense of the city's permanent good, and should be speedily suppressed, or at least discouraged by our resident citizens, merchants, council, etc.

We are living in a great measure upon a spasmodic boom by which few men are being benefitted.

The real estate men are working this game as a business for what they can personally profit by it, and assuredly not for the good of the city. They are throttling the working classes by encouraging the cheapest of cheap labor in their building and improvements and in placing the price of property far beyond their ability to provide the little homes they long for.

It does not seem just that the man of limited means should be carried over acre after acre, square after square, farm after farm of vacant property, miles into the country to seek a home site only to learn that it is from $30 to $60 per foot and does not know whether his trading post shall be Independence, Westport or Kansas City. Three or four hundred greedy, avaricious real estate agents are quite enough to constitute a chronic illness—botts—in the stomach of our young city that it will do well to digest or infinitely better to spew out. We want our suburban acres kept within the reach of our resident laborers, mechanics and salaried men. We should start, or induce others to start, such abiding improvements and manufacturing interests as will employ labor and give property a solid value.

Lord Rosebery a Primrose.

London Correspondence.

When the idea of a racing bankrupt of but a few years ago being made secretary of state for foreign affairs, for that was virtually the financial and social condition of the earl of Rosebery in 1877, when he paid up his turf debts by a marriage with Miss Rothschild. Apropos of Lord Rosebery, I have been told with what truth I am unable to say—that he once behaved in a most dishonorable way to a Miss Duncan, of New York. He had gone out on heiress hunting to America, like the common run of impoverished peers with a coronet for sale to American papas, and had become engaged to Miss Duncan, whose father was one of the solid men of New York. Before the marriage took place rumors reached the earl, who had come back to England, that Mr. Duncan was in financial difficulties. Like a shot he wrote to break the engagement. As Mr. Duncan shortly after thoroughly reinstated himself, the difficulty being but a temporary one, it was rather a sell for Lord Rosebery, whose real motives had been so completely given away, for Miss Duncan was as beautiful and refined as she was rich, and about as completely opposite to Miss Rothschild—whose purse afterward came to the noble earl's rescue from ignominious bankruptcy—as one can imagine. Lord Rosebery is a great friend and toady of Gladstone, and that, together with his alliance by marriage with the money power of the Rothschilds, has got him recognition. It is a curious thing that Lord Rosebery's family name is Primrose, and that with such a tory patronymic he should be so pronounced a radical.

Amusements.

"Pavements of Paris" did not meet with as warm a reception at the Gillis last night as was contemplated. Miss Lettie Allen, who was at one time leading lady with Thomas W. Keene, is with the company and deserves better support than she is receiving. The least that is said of the balance of the "Pavement" company, the better for them. The drama will run to-night and to-morrow night with matinee to-morrow.

Miss Grace Hawthorne, who is at the Gillis Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week gave a performance at St. Joe last evening, and a telegram received from the management announces that the lady was well received. The critics at that city pronounce her one of the most able actresses that have appeared at that city this season. On Thursday evening Miss Hawthorne will give "The New Camille," on Friday "Queena," Saturday evening "Oliver Twist," and "Frou-Frou" Saturday afternoon.

Mr. H. H. Ragan will deliver another one of his intensely interesting lectures this evening at Music Hall.

I cheerfully recommend Red Clover Tonic to those suffering from troubles of the stomach and liver. I am now on my second bottle, and it makes me feel like a new man. C. M. CONNORS, Nashua, Ia.

A Steamer Arrives.

The steamer Wyoming arrived last night heavily loaded with freight. She started for Leavenworth to-day.

Popular discrimination in favor of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has given it a larger sale than any other remedy of its class. Price 25 cents.

A DEADLOCK.

The Council Refuses to Confirm the Mayor's Appointments—A Modest Demand.

A sweltering crowd of office seekers and ward workers filled the lobby of the council room last night, and the sergeant-at-arms found it quite difficult to keep the enthusiasm of the spectators within proper bounds. Outside the building stood a crowd which must have numbered at least 200; and from the shouts frequently wafted upwards the aldermen were led to believe that the question of appointments was being ably and vigorously discussed. Twice during the evening the sight of flying fists and sprawling combatants was witnessed, and it was found necessary to summon a few bluecoats to keep down the belligerent spirit of a small portion of the crowd.

City Clerk Langworthy submitted a report on the gross valuation of taxable property in the city, and Comptroller Grant made a report showing the amount of the levy for the present fiscal year. The levy for 1886 for city purposes will be $1.40 per $100. Last year it was $1.50.

Alderman Patterson introduced a resolution providing that where two aldermen were elected from one ward the question of which should serve two years should be decided by lot. The resolution produced considerable discussion and was finally referred. The question of securing new quarters for city officers and of establishing a market house fund was discussed.

The council went into executive session about 9 o'clock and Mayor Kumpf sent in the names of Robert Quarles for city counselor, and John Donnelly for city engineer. Neither appointment was confirmed, and after a short deadlock a motion to adjourn prevailed. It is understood that the council went into executive session for the express purpose of refusing to confirm any appointment which the mayor might make; this plan was carried out and the aldermen went home happy.

The new members began their legislative work like veterans, and made motions on all possible occasions. Their motions were not always well considered, but their enthusiasm was boundless. Alderman Finlay has heretofore been looked upon as the champion talker of the council, but this year he has several dangerous competitors.

Last night's session was rather trying on the chairman, as he had to keep in check members who were painfully ignorant of parliamentary rules, but exceedingly anxious to indulge in aimless debates. When Alderman Patterson, in order to stop dilatory motions, moved the previous question, a disposition was shown to debate it and the new members could not see why it shut out other motions.

The police commissioners last night made a modest demand for $107,167 to run the force during the present fiscal year. The commissioners somehow conceived the brilliant idea that precincts were a nuisance and they have concluded to abolish them. The station houses will be replaced by police ambulances which, complete, will cost nearly $1,000 each. If a man is arrested in some remote part of the city, he will be held by the arresting officer until an ambulance can be sent to him. It may be necessary to chain the prisoner to a hydrant for an hour or two in case all the ambulances are in use; or, possibly, if the weather is bitterly cold, it may be necessary to walk him around in a lively manner to keep the blood in circulation. The commissioners want an appropriation of $6,000 to be used in building a barn. It will be more commodious and better furnished than the present headquarters of the force.

The Story Didn't Suit.

Of all the skits and gibes at the expense of the affected people in Washington who thought "'Ostler Joe" immoral, the best is a parody by that too discerning wretch, R. J. Burdette. His "Teamster Jim" is probably the most desperate and villainous character ever portrayed in poetry or prose. Here is the scandalous poem, which, as published in that abandoned sheet, the Brooklyn Eagle, is shaking excessively fine society from centre to circumference:

It ain't jest the story, parson, to tell in a crowd like this,
Weth the virtuous matron a frownin' an' chidin' the giggling miss,
An' the good old deacon a noddin' in time weth his patient snores,
An' the shocked aleet of the Capital stalkin' away through the doors.

But then it's a story thet happened, an' every word of it's true,
An' sometimes we can't help talkin' of the things that we sometimes do,
An' though good society coldly shets its doors onto "Teamster Jim,"
I'm thinkin' ther's lots worse people thet's better known than him.

I mind the day he was married, an' I danced at the weddin', too;
An' I kissed the bride, sweet Maggie—daughter of Ben McGrew.
I mind how they sat up housekeepin', two young, poor, happy fools,
When Jim's only stock was a heavy truck an' four Kaintucky mules.

Well, they lived along contented, weth their little joys an' cares,
An' every year a baby come, and twicet they came in pairs;
Till the house was full of children weth their shoutin', and playing, and squalls,
An' their singin', an' laughin', an' cryin' made Bedlam within its walls.

An' Jim, he seemed to like it, an' he spent all his evenin's at home.
He said it was full of music, an' light, an' peace from pit to dome.
He joined the church, an' he used to pray that his heart might be kept from sin—
The stumblin'est prayin'—but heads and hearts used to bow when he'd begin.

So they lived along in that way, the same from day to day,
With plenty of time for drivin' work, an' a little time for play.
An' grown' around 'em the sweetest girls and the liveliest, manliest boys,
Till the old gray heads of the two old folks was crowned with the hom'liest joys.

Eh? Come to my story? Well, that's all. They're livin' jest like I said,
Only two of the girls is married, an' one of the boys is dead.
An' they're honest, an' decent, an' happy, an' the very best Christians I know.
Though I reckon in brilliant comp'ny they'd be voted a little slow.

O, you're pressed for time—excuse you? Sure, I'm sorry I kept you so long;
Good-by. Now he looked kind o' bored like, an' I reckon that I was wrong
To tell such a commonplace story of two such commonplace lives,
But we can't all git drunk, an' gamble, an' fight, an' run off with other men's wives.

A Catholic Priest's Crime.

MADRID, April 18.—At 10:30 o'clock this morning, while the bishop of Madrid was ascending the steps leading to the entrance of the cathedral, he was shot with a revolver by a priest standing at the top of the steps, the ball entering his abdomen. This was followed by another shot which wounded the bishop in the side, whereupon the wounded man fell on the steps. The priest then descended the steps and fired still another shot, which took effect in the bishop's thigh. The bishop was borne in an unconscious condition to a private chamber, where the last sacraments for the dying were administered to him. The priest was arrested.

Being Palm Sunday the cathedral was more than usually crowded by worshipers, and when the fearful work of the priest was realized a furious mob followed the carriage in which he was conveyed to the prison by gens d'armes, whose presence alone prevented his being lynched. The motive for the crime was revenge. The man who fired the shot was recently dismissed from the priesthood and had fruitlessly applied to the bishop to be reinstated. Queen Christina has inquired as to the bishop's condition. The pope has telegraphed his blessing.

The bishop is still alive. The priest made an attempt to commit suicide.

SPORTING.

The New Ball Grounds Fast Approaching Completion—Other Sporting News.

Under the personal supervision of Mr. A. V. McKim the new ball grounds are being pushed forward with a degree of progress that would be marvelous anywhere outside of Kansas City. The grading has been completed and the ground is as level and hard as a floor. The grand stand is nearing completion, the Independence avenue fence is completed, and by the end of the week the grounds will be entirely enclosed. The club will then be put to practice upon them, so that the players may become thoroughly familiar with the grounds by the 29th, when the season opens with a game between the Chicago champions and the home team.

A feature of the new grounds will be a substantial two-story club house at the northwest corner of the grounds in which each member of the club will have a private room. This club house is already well under way and will probably be completed early next week.

The croakers who had declared that the new grounds would not be up to the average are destined to bitter disappointment. They are convenient of access, thoroughly well drained and the appointments will be equal to any in the country.

The National league season will open in this city on Thursday, April 29, when the home club will cross bats with the Chicago team. Work is being pushed rapidly on the new grounds. The Kansas City team puts in every afternoon on the old ball grounds, on the boulevard, in practice, and is rapidly getting into good shape.

The following games were played yesterday afternoon:

American association—At St. Louis: Pittsburg 6, St. Louis Browns 5. At Philadelphia: Metropolitans 4, Athletics 1. At Brooklyn: Baltimore 2, Brooklyn 0.

Southern League—At Charleston: Charleston 3, Atlanta 2. At Augusta: Augusta 8, Nashville 1. At Savannah: Savannah 5, Chattanooga 2. At Macon: Macon 12, Memphis 1.

Exhibition games—At Washington: Nationals 13, Newarks 0. At Hartford: Detroit 9, Hartford 1. At Richmond: Boston 14, Rochester 2.

HISTORY OF THE OYSTER.

The Life of the Luscious Bivalve Not a Happy One—His Enemies in the Sea and on the Land.

A friend of the festive oyster was discovered by a reporter in the act of rapturously studying the pages of a plain little volume, says the San Francisco Alta. The shellfish expert seemed deeply interested, and as he perused he made mild gestures of a dramatic character that excited the beholder's curiosity.

An oyster lay in its pearly shell,
'Neath the splash of the waves and the deep sea's swell—

He was murmuring as the reporter came up, and the latter, liking the tenor of the rhyme, asked for the remainder of it.

"Ah, my literary friend," he replied, "you would not think that the humble oyster would ever get to be the subject of a poet's effort, would you? Allow me to convince you of your error," and with considerable dramatic effect the gentleman recited the following lines:

An oyster lay in its pearly shell,
'Neath the splash of the waves and the deep sea's swell,
And calm and serene in his happy state
He thus proceeded to ruminate:

"In idle pleasures I take my ease,
Down here in the depths of the rolling seas.
The waters, my servants, bring me food,
As to such a fine fellow as I they should.

"The sunbeams pierce to my safe retreat,
But they come deprived of their withering heat,
They light my palace and all about,
But when I don't want them I shut them out

"I watch the keels as they pass above,
Or the huge-wheeled steamers that swiftly move,
And the majestic ships that stately sail
On the breast of the billows before the gale."

He continued the story of his content,
But ere the thread of his yarn was spent
Or the last drop of pleasure was named in his cup,
A dredge swept along and gobbled him up.

"The poem ends there," said the reader, "but I suppose there was not more to tell, and poets are not fond of talking about things that go the way of all the earth."

"Who discovered that oysters were eatable, Mike?" asked the reporter between his shrimps.

"Well, sir, it is sad to be compelled to admit that he is anonymous. If he was known he should have a monument, but he isn't. I have here, however, [opening his pamphlet again], a quotation from Mr. Bertram's 'Harvest of the Sea,' in which he says that a man was walking along a beach many, many years ago, and insulted an oyster by attempting to pry into its shell. The intelligent crustacean resented the indignity by nipping his finger, which the inquisitive man promptly inserted in his own mouth. The oyster's juice that adhered to his finger pleased his taste, and he smashed the unfortunate's shell and devoured the morsel, thus wreaking his revenge and inaugurating the original oyster banquet. Emperors and princes, poets and preists, pontiffs and statesmen, orators and artists, and the whole world fell into line, and now everybody eats oysters."

"When did this happen?"

"It was before I was born—can't say just when, but it was way back. A writer in 1621 says that 'very large oysters' were so plentiful in New Amsterdam that they could not be sold, and Von der Donk, the traveler, speaks of there being many oysters in many places in 1641. The Dutch council of New York had some acquaintance with oysters in 1568, when they found it necessary to pass an ordinance prohibiting all persons from digging oysters in the East or North rivers, between the city and fresh water. The fresh water referred to was the long pond that stood on the present site of Spruce street, the present leather district of New York city.

Then, it seems, that oysters were gathered principally for the lime and street pavement material that their shells afforded, the meats were worth about eight stivers a hundred. Pearl street received its name from being paved with oyster shells, and was one of the very few names that remained unchanged during the English occupancy. The presence of the letter "r" in the names of months seemed to affect people then as now, for Kalm stated in 1748 that oysters were good eight months in the year. As late as 1825 the New York trade was only extensive enough to maintain one wholesale house, which supplied the street vendors, and the New York Herald speaks of the trade having commenced about that time. It seemed to boom, however, when it did commence, for in 1850 the one port had a thousand vessels, of between forty-five and two hundred tons burned, engaged in the oyster business, besides innumerable small crafts."

When he had gathered this much information from the expert, the reporter probed further, and asked if it was true that the wind never whistled through an oyster's whiskers.

"Young man,' said Mike severely, as he squirted a dose of tobacco into a pepper roast, "don't you make fun of the oyster; he is sensitive, and don't like it, and a slight shock is likely to kill him. I don't deny that an oyster has a beard, but he also has a heart, even if it doesn't beat but once a minute, and you can't see it except with a magnifying glass, and anything with a heart ought to be respected. That he is tender is videnced by the fact that thunder will kill oysters, and the life of whole cargoes have been destroyed on the Atlantic coast by the vessel being caught in a storm. Let an oyster fall a short distance and the shock will kill him. Pounding on the side of a vessel or tank containing oysters will kill every one that feels the jar, and the presence of a boat over a shallow bed will cause every oyster in it to shut up shop. The oyster is blind from infancy, but the boat jars the water, and his delicate senses cause him to close his shell, long experience having presumably taught him that an enemy is abroad."

"Do you prefer to knock your oysters down with a pole or shake the trees?" pursued the reporter, endeavoring to molify the defender of the boss shellfish by manifesting interest.

"Well, we don't do either out here, but in the Pequonock river, Connecticut, they shake the tree."

To back himself up, Mike produced his book again and proceeded to read a paragraph concerning oyster culture in the stream mentioned. It is common there to cut birch bushes and stick them into the river bottom where it is only a foot or two in depth, and where it is deeper the bushes are fastened to a long chain and anchored. The fry oysters that do not care to take chances on being covered up and smothered with slickens climb the trees from pure force of innocuous desuetude and colonize as if to the manner born. The hunters take advantage of the habits they have taught the guileless animals, and instead of laboriously going for them with hook and line, they simply pull up the bushes and shake their habitants off on deck or into bushel baskets. As many as twenty-five bushels have been gathered, when fully ripe, from a single tree, but the average bush only yields about five bushels. This method seems to place the oyster on a level with apples or potatoes, but it is not nearly so brutal as the usual method of simply dumping a lot of old, worn-out shells on the bottom for a foundation, and then planting the young oysters on them.

Man, less sensitive but more cunning than the oyster, takes advantage of the latter's proclivities for staying at home, and puts him wherever he wants, being sure that he won't run away if he could and that he couldn't if he would. No man could handle quail or wild pigs in this way, and it does seem as if the oyster did not have all the liberty that the constitution of the union guarantees to law abiding citizens. Another imposition is the regulation of the cut of the oyster's clothes. Experts have found out that by locating a young fellow on a bush or a hard, sandy bottom they can compel him to grow a round, fat shell, and by dumping him on a soft, muddy bottom he will grow long and narrow. Some people have a weakness for the shape of an oyster, and if a cultivator finds himself in a community of this sort he often takes advantage of his knowledge to grow bivalves to order. Referring to experts on the subject ample evidence is obtainable that the oyster has trouble enough on his hands without being subjected to such indignities. His experience is a perpetual fight for life from the time of his birth. When he is born he is a fine young fellow, so fine, in fact, that a few millions of him only resemble a little cloud of dust. In his reliant helplessness he hunts for something to cling to, and if he don't find it he falls an inevitable prey to his foes. He is likely to be blown out to sea or smothered in mud, or chewed up by worms or a polyps.

After he gets old enough to vote or wear a shell he becomes fair game for the star fish, or five-fingered-jack, which is as hard on an oyster as yellow jack is on mankind. The star fish has got five fingers, and a stomach in every finger, besides a boss stomach in the middle that he can turn inside out and distend if his body is not big enough to hold the stomach's full capacity. He plays the camel dodge very often, and after he gets tired of eating he stows away half a dozen raw in the auxiliary stomachs as a precaution against hard times. There is another little beast known as the drill, who isn't big enough to eat much, but he will bore a hole through an oyster's shell and stab him through pure love of murder and the sake of a few drops of juice. On this cost the stingray occasionally gets his work in by smashing the shells of the oyster, but not often, and he is harmless compared with the star fish, which travels in gangs sometimes, and cleans out entire acres of peaceful oysters. There is a good deal more that might be said in support of the organization of a humane and protection society, but this is as much as the Alta can advance at one time in favor of the proposition, because the Chinese are not implicated in the industry, and there is no chance for a boycott.

A HOTEL CLERK PUZZLED.

A Very Peculiar Case of Helplessness in Manhood.

A peculiar case of helplessness in manhood was developed at Alexander's hotel last evening. About 7 o'clock two men entered the hotel and presented themselves to Colonel John Sullivan, the clerk. One said that he had found the other, who appeared to be deaf and dumb, just outside the door, and having delivered himself of his charge the spokesman departed. Then it was that Mr. Sullivan looked at the unfortunate, and the latter looked at John. The patent-inside smile faded from the clerk's face as he realized his position.

"Will you have supper, sir?" inquired he, blandly as possible under the trying circumstances.

The effect of the inquiry was good, for the man shook his head in acquiescence. He was sent to the dining room in charge of a bell boy, and Mr. Sullivan's face beamed pleasantly as he thought what an excellent thing it was to be able to deal with all sorts of people. The smile faded, however when the boy returned with the man, saying the latter had refused to enter the dining room. A council of ways and means was called in "Uncle Joe's" private office, and the man was brought there. He was dressed in the garb of a well-to-do farmer, and appeared healthy and bright. He was perfectly at ease, which in itself was astounding. He handed the clerk his large satchel and took a seat. He then delivered over a large roll of bills amounting to several hundred dollars, a bag of gold and silver, a large pistol and a double handfull of cartridges, tying up the latter in a handkerchief. It was found that he could neither hear, talk, read or write, and an effort to communicate with him by means of simple finger language failed utterly. Here was a dilemma certainly, and had it not been so amusing would have proved distracting. The man's utter nonchalance and his excellent financial conditions rendered sympathy somewhat unnecessary; but what to do with him was the question. He had no letters, papers or any kind of writing on his person, nothing to designate who he was, where he was from or where he wished to go. The readiness with which he trusted his valuables to the clerk gave evidence that he was accustomed to traveling, but how he had ever been able to purchase a railroad ticket was a puzzle. All the guests of the house were brought in and one after the other exhausted his knowledge of sign language without result. Finally he bent his head to one side, placed his hand against it, and closed his eyes, indicating that he wished to retire. He was shown to a room, leaving all to debate upon who the thunder he could be. On sight he would be taken for an honest countryman of average intelligence and means.

CREMATION IN INDIA.

Buildings by the Riverside in Which the Work is Done.

A Calcutta correspondent, writing to the New York Times, says: Now that cremation is on a fair footing at home, perhaps the readers of your paper would like to hear how it is carried on in this country, where it is part of the Hindoo religion to have the bodies of the dead burned. I took a walk through one of the largest burning ghats in Calcutta, the other night, at midnight. Let me describe the Nintollah burning-ghat, which will answer for a description of all. It is a stone building on the river Hooghly, facing the stream. The back and the two sides of the structure are solid walls, the front being open with large columns supporting the roof. The building is about 225 by 50 by 30. The front has a stone rail about four feet high running along the edge of the bank. There is no flooring but the solid earth.

From the center of the front a stone stairway about ten feet wide leads down to the river. The land entrance is through archways in the back wall close to the sides. Through these the bodies are carried for cremation. When a body is brought down the domes (the lowest caste of Hindoo, whose only business is to burn bodies), of which there are a great many, sing out: "Huri Bol; huri Bol." (Speak, God; speak God.) As I entered the building I found that a man's body had just been brought in and was resting on the cot on which he had died. His widow was leaning over the cot crying and imploring the husband to return to life. Behind her stood her mother and sister. After about twenty minutes one of the domes informed her that it was time to get the body ready for the fire. The woman then took some ghee (an oily preparation) and rubbed it on the head, shoulders, and feet of the body. She entreated her husband to come back to life, at which one of the domes asked if her husband was not a good Brahmin, to which she replied, "God's will is right," and then gave the orders to prepare the fire. The domes placed three tiers of logs at right angles with each other on some live coals, and the body was placed on the pile. The elbow, wrist, knee and ankle joints were then broken, the legs bent back on the back, and the arms placed under the back as the body lay with the face upward. This, as you may imagine, was the most trying time for the widow, and it was with great difficulty her relatives kept her away from the pile. Three tiers of wood were then placed on top of the body, and a little ghee was poured on the fire, which immediately blazed up. All present sang out: "Huri, Bol; huri, Bol." The nearest relatives remained until the body burned to ashes. While we were watching this ceremony we discovered a native kneeling at another fire before the last remains of his wife. He was swinging himself to and fro as the fire became dim. The ordinary charge for burning a body in India is equal to about $1.75, which includes payment for the following: An earthen pot to bring water, a cloth to cover the body, a little ghee, and the wood for the fire. When a high caste Hindoo dies his burning pile is sandal wood. Sandal-wood oil and ghee are used for the body, and raisins are put into the fire. Of course this increases the cost.

When the body of a sick person is brought down to the ghat, the domes take the cot to the edge of the river and one or two of them take the mud and fill the sick man's mouth, eyes, and ears with it. Then they lift him from the cot and shake him until he is suffocated. He is then put on his cot and cot and all are held underneath the surface of the water for a couple of minutes, the domes singing "Huri, Bol." Although Calcutta is under English rule this murder is committed every day. There are nearly one hundred castes recognized in the Hindoo religion but it is only that death that members of different castes associate with each other at all. Hindoos of similar castes only can eat, smoke, or sit together. But at the killing of the sick the lowest of the low puts mud into the mouth of the aristocratic Brahman. The ashes are collected and sold to tea estates, and used for fertilizing purposes.

A JUGGLER'S TRICKS.

The Wonderful Performances by a Native of India.

When he entered the room he spread a white cloth down upon the floor and sat down upon it with his back to the wall, the door of the room being on his right hand. His spectators were disposed of in the following fashion: Mr. Smyth sat on a chair nearly in the middle of the room, I was sitting on a sofa near the door, the Parsee merchant stood in the doorway about an arm's length from me. The servants stood about in groups, the largest group being between the door and the conjurer. As soon as he had settled himself he turned to the Parsee and asked for the loan of a rupee. The peddler at first demurred a little, but, on being guaranteed against loss, he produced the coin. He was going to put it into the conjuror's hand, but the latter refused and told the Parsee to hand it to Mr. Smyth's bearer. The bearer took it; and at the request of the conjuror, looked at it and declared it to be really a rupee. The conjurer then told him to hand it to his master. Mr. Smyth took it and then followed this dialogue:

Conjurer—Are you sure it is a rupee?

Smyth—Yes.

Conjurer—Close your hand and hold it tight. Now think of some country in Europe, but do not tell me your thought.

Then the conjurer ran over the names of several countries, such as France, Germany, Russia, Turkey and America—for the native of India is under the impression that America is in Europe. After a moment's pause Mr. Smyth said he had thought of a country.

"Then open your hand," said the juggler; "see what you have got, and tell me if it is a coin of the country you thought of."

It was a 5-franc piece, and Mr. Smyth had thought of France. He was going to hand the coin to the conjurer, but the latter said:

"No; pay it to the other sahib."

Mr. Smyth accordingly put the 5-franc piece into my hand. I looked closely at it, then shut my hand, and thought of Russia. When I opened it I found, not a Russian, but a Turkish silver piece, about the size of a 5-franc piece or of our own crown piece. This I handed to Mr. Smyth and suggested that he should name America, which he did, and found a Mexican dollar in his hand. The coin, whatever it was, had never been in the conjurer's hand from the time the rupee was borrowed from the Parsee merchant. Mr. Smyth and his bearer had both of them closely examined the rupee, and Mr. Smyth and myself turned over several times the 5-franc piece, the Turkish coin, and the dollar; so the trick did not depend on a reversible coin. Indeed, it could not, for the coin underwent three changes, as has been seen. I only add, for the information of those readers who do not know India, that a rupee is only about the size of a florin, and therefore about half the weight of a 5-franc piece.

He did another trick almost equally as wonderful. As before, he was seated on a white cloth, which this time, I think, was a tablecloth borrowed from the mess sergeant. He asked someone to produce a rupee, and to lay it down at a remote edge of the cloth. The cloth being three or four yards in length, the conjurer could not have touched the coin without being seen, and, in fact, did not touch it. He then asked for a signet ring. Several were offeered him, and he chose out one which had a very large oval seal, projecting well beyond the gold hoop on both sides. The ring he tossed and tumbled several times in his hands, now throwing it into the air and catching it, then shaking it between his clasped hands, all the time mumbling half-inarticulate words in some Hindoostanee patois. Then setting the ring down on the cloth at about half arm's length in front of him, he said, slowly and distinctly, in good Hindoostanee:

"Ring, rise up and go to the rupee." The ring rose, with the seal uppermost, and, resting on the hoop, slowly, with a kind of dancing or jerking motion, it passed over the cloth until it came to where the rupee was on the remote edge, then it lay down on the coin. The conjuror then said: "Ring, lay hold of the rupee and bring it to me." The projecting edge of the seal seemed to grapple with the edge of the coin; the ring and the rupee rose into a kind of wrestling attitude, and, with the same dancing or jerking motion, the two returned to within reach of the juggler's hand.

I have no theory to explain either of these tricks. I should mention, however, that the juggler entirely disclaimed all supernatural power, and alleged that he performed his tricks by mere sleight of hand. It will be observed that he had no preparation of his surroundings, no machinery, and no confederate.

After the Hundred Days.

From the Gentleman's Magazine.

The treatment of those who had accepted any sort of an appointment during the hundred days was cruel and implacable. Deprivation of employment was extended to men of the humblest rank, such as letter carriers, dealers in tobacco and so forth. Both army and navy were "purged" of Bonapartist officers, and replaced by old men, mostly broken down and ignorant of either profession. The public service was thus completely disorganized. Society was honey combed with mutual suspiciousness. In many departments the prefects threatened ruinous punishments against inn-keepers, lodging keepers, and others who should delay to denounce the circulators of false or disloyal rumors, or who were overheard to utter remarks prejudicial topublic tranquility of the Bourbon order. Gendarmes, gardes champetres and national guards were promised promotion and rewards for the spontaneous arrest of persons who spoke of the government in disparaging terms, or offered for sale books, pamphlets or journals of a politically objectionable character. Domiciliary visits were the order of the day, and usually preluded arrest, if not exile. These visits were sometimes organized as military expeditions, under the immediate guidance of high legal functionaries carrying arms and escorted by cavalry. On such occasions house doors were violently broken open, the furniture was destroyed, and precious objects, title deeds and money were shamelessly carried off and appropriated. The Messrs. Sadourny, proprietors of coal mines and a glass manufactory, were awakened one morning in February, 1816, by an expedition of this kind, and called upon to surrender seven Bonapartist generals believed to be secreted in their coal pits. On their denial of the charge their premises were taken possession of by a detachment of 300 horse and foot from Clermont, who flooded their mines rather than descend into them, and quartered themselves on those gentlemen for several days, while a company remained two weeks, living on the fat of the land and doing irreparable damage to the works. Some drunken soldiers, indeed, set fire to the manufactory, which was reduced to ashes. A somewhat analogous case is recorded in the private journal of J. J. Ampere. Three or four armed ruffins set fire to the factory of M. Perier, at Vezelle, and dangerously wounded the manager, who succeeded, however, in killing one of his assailants. Information was immediately dispatched to the nearest post of the gendarmerie; but as M. Perier was suspected of Bonapartism, the gendarmes were sent on foot, and proceeded very leisurely, even stopping to refresh themselves at a neighboring village. The local authorities subsequently refused to make any inquiries or to take any steps to discover the authors of the outrage. Throughout the two years 1815 and 1816 legalized murders, to use M. Vaulabelle's epithet, were continually occurring. Superior officers of the royal guard entrapped young men into hasty expressions capable of distortion, and then placing them under arrest, handed them over to the provost's court.

They are trying in Germany to find a substitute for India rubber. No one who has used Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure desires a substitute, as it is eminently successful in coughs, colds and all throat and lung diseases.

QUININE IN DISFAVOR.

Another Hobby Dead.

From the Baltimore Morning Herald.

In the Kharkoo region of Russia, quinine is considered of no account for the cure of chills and fever. The Kharkoo doctor catches a mess of live crabs, pours whisky over them until they become hilariously drunk and then put them in a hot oven. After being well dried, they are pulverized, shells and all, and administered in drachm doses. Where the crabs most abound in this country in the waters of the eastern shore of Maryland and the eastern shore of Virginia, the inhabitants have long since abandoned the use of quinine and sensibly resort to prevention in the use of pure whisky. In the malarial sections of the great west, southwest and south, this once famed remedy is now looked upon as worse than disease. In territories where the virgin sod is newly broken, the malarial poison exuding therefrom spreads pestilence far and near. Years ago in the homes of the first settlers, an admixture of whisky and quinine was the favorite dose for the chills, but after years of dosing in this crude manner, quinine has long since been given up and whisky only remains in the flask for family medicinal use. Experience taught these settlers long ago that the amount of quinine required to drive out the malarial poison in the blood, left in its place, if not a worse poison, a condition of the system made worse instead of better. The effects of the quinine were clearly defined, in long continued headaches, disordered stomachs, clouded mental faculties, disturbed sleep and morbid appetite, and the only virtue discovered in its use they thought attributable to the whisky in the mixture. The insatiable craving of the opium eater for more and more of his fatal drug, is in a like manner produced by the injudicious use of quinine, and also, in like manner, a wreck of the nervous system. The medical profession has very greatly modified its belief in quinine as a specific. Gaillard's Medical Journal, October, 1885, contains an article entitled, "Malaria and Quinine," by L. B. Anderson, M. D., Norfolk, Va., in which the learned doctor uses this emphatic language: "I hope I may be pardoned for saying that the present empirical use of quinine is worthy of the darkest period of the dark ages. It is a blighting shame and disgrace to our profession." The people exposed to malaria now fortify their systems against the approach and inroads of the diseases proceeding from it, and by the use of pure unadulterated stimulant ward off attack. Now that Duffy's pure malt whisky is the only absolutely pure whisky free from fusel oil, as has been tested by eminent chemists, it is the recognized cure in malarial attacks and so recognized by the people and medical profession.

INFORMATION FOR THE PEOPLE.

Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia.

This work, first published in 1874, has just been thoroughly revised and brought down to date. No book published in America has ever received such high encomiums from every source of competent criticism as Johnson's Cyclopædia. Its plan is new and original. The abundance of its material, the arrangement of its matter, and its remarkable cheapness are producing a revolution in the cyclopædia business, and will account for the following flattering testimonials:

From Hon. A. R. Spofford, L. L. D., librarian of congress—It is a work which is found in the library of congress to answer more questions satisfactorily than any other work of reference.

From representative teachers of public schools of Kansas City—We, teachers of the public schools of Kansas City, have examined Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia and compared it with others. There are many new and important features in this work, which are found in no other. In many respects it is superior to all others. Some of its most decided advantages are late dates, freshness of matter and style, general plan and cheapness—the price being about one-half or one-third that of its competitors.

We cheerfully recommend it to all who are desirous of placing useful and valuable books in their libraries.

From Mrs. Carrie W. Whitney, librarian public library.—After having thoroughly examined Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia, and used the American (Appleton's) daily for six years, I am convinced that Johnson's is not only superior to the American, but it is the best encyclopædia in existence for general use. In accordance with the above views I have procured a set for the public library, and also one for my own private use.

Messrs. A. B. Jones & Sons, general managers for the publishing house of A. J. Johnson & Co., New York, have their office at 102 east Ninth street, and are now introducing this work in Kansas City. The favor with which it has already been received by so many of our leading men insures for it a large sale.

SWEET AND SACRED SCALLOPS.

A Tradition About the Toothsome Bits that Only a Few People Know Of.

Just at present fried scallops form a prominent item on the bill of fare of every well-ordered restaurant. But even among good livers, who love the scallop for the scallop's sake, few are aware that it possesses a sacred as well as a secular history. Centuries ago, at and immediately after the time of the crusaders, pilgrims journeying to pay their homage at the shrine of the Holy land wore as a distinguishing sign a shell of the pecten Jacobeus, a scallop found in the Mediterranean. The crusading knights also used it as a badge, and Godfrey de Bouillon is said to have worn one when he stormed the walls of Jerusalem. So high was the scallop held in esteem that its shell became the badge of several orders of knighthood, and to-day forms part of the armorial bearings of some of the greatest English families. The pecten Maximus is at present found on the coast of England. It has a deep shell and is of large size. The pecten Opercularis is another species, found on the north and west coasts of Ireland in from fifteen to twenty fathoms of water, and is much esteemed as a delicate food. The scallops found on the coast of Great Britain present some interesting features in their construction, the fish varying in size all the way from the size of a half dollar to that of a dinner plate, the smaller sizes being distinguished for the delicate tinting an their shells, the colors varying from a brilliant pink to a deep orange. The scallops possesses a deep shell and a flat one, and makers of high class chinaware have taken advantage of that fact, and fashioned their wares in imitation. Some exquisite design of cups and saucers are the result, the cup representing the deep shell and the saucer the shallow one. The common American scallops pecten Irridians, is found along the Long Island shore and the entire eastern coast. In former years a much larger species, pecten Islandicus, was found on the coast of eastern Maine and the Bay of Fundy. Although the Long Island scallops are considered very fine, the best scallops come from Rhode Island, and are taken to the Boston market. Although they may be considered too rich for ordinary eating, scallops stewed with properly seasoned white sauce form a dish fit for a king.

Washington Street Pavement.

A meeting of Washington street property owners was held at the Coates house, last night, for the purpose discussing the paving of that street. A majority of those present were in favor of using six-inch cedar blocks on three inches of sand and one-inch cypress planks.

Attachment Suit.

Wurmser & Louis, furniture dealers, swore out a state warrant yesterday against Mrs. S. B. Rafferty, charging her with running off with property worth $135 upon which they held a mortgage. Mrs. Rafferty was arrested at the Union depot last night. She was not locked up.

Marvellous and magical are the effects of St. Jacobs Oil on rheumatism and neuralgia.
